

Opportunities for Research Dissemination

Students are encouraged to contribute to original research with the mentorship and support of faculty members at the Graduate School of Education and Psychology (GSEP), and across other departments at Pepperdine University.

Research activities leading to the dissemination of knowledge in the formal and social sciences may be contributed toward several peer-reviewed journal publications and conferences, as well as research funding for presenting and publishing.

Students are also encouraged to consult with the Pepperdine Libraries for more information about scholarly communications.

Library InfoGuides are available at <http://infoguides.pepperdine.edu/publishing>.

The Graduate School of Education and Psychology neither endorses nor condemns any organization, publisher, or association.
