If Truth be Told...

The task of being authentic in the therapeutic relationship can be unknowingly thwarted by one's silent assumptions (countertransferences). This is an experiential seminar that is meant to challenge one's identified sense of self and other, and the inherent "truths" that define and/or divide each of us. You will have the opportunity to elaborate these constructs of the self to use as vehicles of change and greater intimacy with others.

Thursday, February 4th, 2010
2:00 pm-4:00 pm, 2nd Floor, Room 202
Networking Begins at 3:30 pm
Pepperdine University - West Los Angeles Graduate Campus
6100 Center Drive Los Angeles, CA 90045

Loren Schiavone, LMFT, PsyD

Loren Schiavone, LMFT, PsyD has worked in hospital based and county-funded mental health outpatient programs for the past 15 years. She has extensive experience in working with the chronic and persistently mentally ill adult and geriatric population. She has specializations in Expressive Arts, Bereavement and Gerontology and is currently focused her energies in working with survivors of severe and sadistic childhood trauma and its lifelong ramifications. She has supervised MFT trainees for the past ten years, helping students identify and define themselves in the therapeutic relationship and use their unique selves to enhance the therapeutic process.
